Nanoarchitectonics: a new materials horizon for nanotechnology

Nanoarchitectonically structured nanomaterials represent a new horizon for nanotechnology. This concept represents a novel methodology for construction of materials and systems from nano-sized components leading to unexpected properties and functionalities of future nanomaterials.